Management Training

Developing highly skilled managers and leaders is critical to the success of all sectors of the UK economy. Over 4 million people are employed in management in the UK and there is real need for appropriately qualified professionals to address the future requirements of organisations. Apprenticeships are nationally designed training programmes offering employees the opportunity to enhance their career through a combination of training and assessment.

The Management Advanced Apprenticeship is aimed at supervisors and first line managers who need to maintain and develop the effectiveness and efficiency of the operations for which they are responsible.
